

Week ending 11th October 2019

Literacy

After writing some fabulous descriptions of Ariadne, the children have now begun to write their own myths!

Maths

Following on from our introductory work on fractions, the children have now started looking at decimals. We have been looking at what tenths are and how they can be represented.

Topic

As our topic on the Ancient Greeks draws to a close, children in year 4 have been assimilating their learning. They have looked back at what they knew at the start of the unit and comparing it to what they know now. They have also done some research on some of the areas that we did not cover but they wanted to find out more about. Finally they represented their new found learning using a mind map.
